Your request concerning REACH

Dear Mrs. Mills,

Thank you for your interest in the subject REACH. We would like to inform you about the updated state of realisation in our company.

The REACH regulation, effective in every country of the EU since 01 June 2007, addresses oneself primarily to the producers of substances, who must have to register their substances in a defined chronological sequence. This scheduling for substances produced in small quantities ends in 01 June 2018. Due to this long period, today, no one can say if all substances on the market at present will be registered, so that currently neither the producer nor the user of chemicals will issue a guarantee on this.

You purchase articles from our company. At present only two demands are made on articles. On the one hand it has to be checked if there is an intended release of a substance, which is subject to registration, from the article. We can assure, this will not be the case by the articles supplied to you.

The second demand currently addressed to articles is the topic of substances of very high concern which are subject to the duty to communicate information along the complete supply chain in accordance with Article 33 REACH. Also the consumer is entitled to get this information within 45 days on demand. The substances of very high concern are published in a list of candidates whose first version is announced on 28 October 2008 by the European Chemical Agency (ECHA). The list was extended on 15/01/2018 and now includes 181 substances of very high concern.

We assure you that the article and its packaging do not contain more than 0,1% (w/w) of any substance registered in the list of candidates (dated 12/01/2017) in accordance with Article 59 (1) REACH.

Besides, we can assure you that our specialists are aware of their responsibility concerning the products supplied to you and will take all appropriate measures within the scope of their care to supply you further on with products in a high quality manner according to the requirements of REACH.

Kind regards

Angelika Schmidt-Koch
